Hinduism

Today more than 800 million people practice the religion of Hinduism. Most Hindus, or believers in Hinduism, live in Asia. Hindus believe in many gods. Some most important gods are Brahma, the Creator; Vishnu the Preserver, and Shiva the Destroyer. All the gods as well as everything living are all thought to be part of a single spirit called Brahman.

Hindus believe in reincarnation. Reincarnation is the rebirth of the soul into a new body after a person's death. In a new life a soul may be born into a different class or area of life. For example, a person may be born into a higher or lower caste.

For a soul to be reborn in a higher caste in another life, a person must live a good life in the present life. If she or he does not do this, the soul of his or her will be born in the best way possible.

The goal is for the soul to one day reach perfection. Then the soul will no longer be reborn but will remain with Brahman.

Hindus have many holy books. The oldest of these are the four Vedas, which include prayers, songs, poems, and stories. Another holy work is an epic called the Mahabharata. An epic is a long story poem. The Mahabharata tells the story of five princes who were forced from their kingdom and went into exile. Part of the poem, called the Bhagavad Gita, discusses religion and the meaning of life.
